The Parts of a Story

Exposition (intro to our character, the 'inciting incident' that leads them to the story's conflict)

Rising Action (what are the challenges the main character faces while trying to achieve their goals?)

Climax (where the conflict is at maximum intensity—where everything is possible or impossible, where the character makes a major decision either way)

Falling Action (what happens as a result of the character's decisions and actions)

Denouement – (what happens after the conflict resolves? Normal life? New, different life?)
